1. Prize-winning competition

"Novelties" within the framework of these exhibition rules constitute, amongst others, newly cultivated plants and new previously unknown forms of growth or growing in the wild. Only the plants exhibited in the showcase for new varieties and not the mechanical or technical aids connected to plant breeding and cultivation shall be awarded a prize.

Awards will bear the title of "Novel IPM 2022 plant" and will be given in the following categories (one award per category)

- cut flowers
- flowering indoor pot plants
- foliage indoor pot plants
- spring flowers, which have a significant frost toleranz and be used from winter to the date after risk of late frost has passed (for example: primula, viola, bellis and myosotis) also springflowering perennials
- summer flowers
- tree nursery products
- Perennials
- tub plants

A jury composed of experienced garden architecture specialists will evaluate the exhibits. IPM exhibitors will not be allowed to participate in this commission. Evaluation will mainly be based on the following points:

- Quality of the exhibited products;
- Suitability for the respective market sector;
- Improvement and originality in contrast to the conventional assortment.

No recourse to courts of law being possible, evaluation will be to the best of the jury's knowledge and belief. The jury shall be entitled to reject any registrations with definitive defects in quality. Awarding a prize will not represent any evidence of an evaluated product being a novelty or an independent product and will exclude all consequences of copyright violations for Messe Essen and ZVG.

2. Admitted exhibitors

All companies represented as plant exhibitors at IPM 2022 will be admitted

3. Admitted products

Plant products belonging to all categories (s.1.) that have previously not been exhibited at German trade fairs will be admitted.
